"It's been a complete joy working with Jona. Although I've worked with Jona the past 6 months, Jona and I mesh together nicely, especially since I worked in a director position prior to joining Smithfield's team. Since filling the Director of Marketing role, I've worked with Jona on countless occasions to further build the technological solutions available to the marketing department. Jona offers insight and solutions to every challenge I've encountered up to this point. Jona has broadened the number of technological tools available to my department, which have in turn advanced the reach of the marketing department. Some of the more prominent projects Jona has helped me implement has included website redirection and the automation of emailing clients."

"I have worked with Jona on several projects to improve project delivery processes. He clearly demonstrated a deep understanding of the challenges in effectively delivering large capital projects and was a visionary in the goals and strategies he established for driving improvement across complex project management organization. As a consultant, I can also attest to his effectiveness as a project manager - he kept everyone firmly focused on the real issues of importance and drove the kind of teamwork that enabled everyone to achieve and exceed the high goals he set for every deliverable. At the same time, Jona was a great guy to work with as he was always open to suggestions on how his ideas could be improved and enhanced "
